Auction horses arrived in Verden

Auction lot of the summer auction has moved into its boxes

Verden. The young sport horses of the Verden Summer Auction, who will be auctioned in the Niedersachsenhalle on July 20th have moved into their boxes at the barn of Hannoveraner Verband. Visitors are not only welcome to attend the presentations, the daily training is also open to the public. In addition, the auction candidates can be tried out at any time by appointment.

58 preselected and veterinarily examined horses belong to the current auction collection. From three-year-old youngsters to highly-placed sport horses "for an immediate start" – there is something suitable for everyone interested. Over the next twelve days, the horses will be trained daily by the seven auction riders. They will be supported by Hans-Heinrich Meyer zu Strohen, the German national trainer for young dressage riders. Auction rider Heiko Klausning will supervise the auction training from the second week onwards and support his colleagues with tips "from the ground".

On Saturday, 13 July, the first presentation of the horses will take place in the Niedersachsenhalle. The first presentation will start with the jumping horses at 10 am. The presentation of the dressage horses will start at 2 pm. Videos of the presentation can be found on the homepage of the Hannoveraner Verband from 15 July. The second presentation will take place on 17 July, this time with a livestream on the Internet. The auction will start at 2 pm on Saturday, July 20. Bidding is possible both in the Niedersachsenhalle and by telephone.

Experienced customer advisors are on hand at all times to help interested parties with advice and assistance and to help them try out the horses. For ticket and catalogue
